How Bessie Chose Her Husband.

Mrs. Lanson's door opened and Bessie came in with a troubled look on her sweet young face. 'What is the matter, my daughter,' said Mrs. Lanson pleasantly. 'Oh, I'm in such a dilemna, mother. Tuesday evening when Artur Mercer was here, he asked me to be his wife. I was taken by surprise and did not know what to say. I begged him to give me a month's time to consider the matter. He kindly consented to do so; last evening when I went riding with Gus Windon as I promised, he asked the same question: of course I had to put him on probation too.

They have both been dear friends, but I thing my heart inclines a little more favorably toward Gus. He is the jolliest fellow I know: but whether his nature holds out at home as elsewhere, I cannot say.

Home is the place to form a correct estimate of a person's disposition, and not in company.'

'Yes, my daughter, that is true: but, unfortunately young people seldom have a chance to judge each other from that standpoint. There would be many more happy marriages if they could.'

Bessie sat in deep thought some time. then suddenly sprang up and danced around the room, as she exclaimed: 'I have it mamma, I have it. Mrs. Mercer told me last week, her girl would leave to-morrow. I will disguise myself and apply for the position. If I succeed in getting it, I will stay long enough to satisfy myself about Arthur, then get homesick and have to 'leave,' as Bridget would say. You know, mamma, the Irish brogue is so easy for me, it will help me effectually to disguise me.'

'As your plan may have much to do with your future happiness, I have no objection,' said Mrs. Lanson.

Bessie left the room, and in about an hour she returned so completely changed, even her mother scarcely knew her. 'An Irish Biddy you surely are,' said Mrs. Lanson. 'You need not fear discovery Bessie, your own father would not recognize you.'

Well satisfied with herself, Bessie proceeded to Mrs. Mercer's, and when an hour later she left that lady, she had the promise of the coveted situation, if all parties were satisfied after a week's trial. She was to begin her duties the following morning. With a light heart, she sped home to tell her mother of her success, and to make preparations to return that evening.

She kept the highway about half the way home, then looking intently up and down the road, and not seeing any one to observe her actions, she climbed the fence and ran across a meadow to a piece of woods lying directly beyond. She then felt perfectly safe from detection. Just at dusk, with her bundle under her arm, she again appeared at the Mercer farm house. Mrs. Mercer greeted her with a pleasant 'good-evening.' After a little talk with her regarding the work, and what she expected of her help, Bessie was shown her room and informed that she must be up at 5 o'clock every morning.

After a sound refreshing sleep she rose, made her simple toilet and appeared in the kitchen at the appointed time. She wore a neat calico dress, protected by an ample apron, and a plain linen collar. Her own brown locks were completely hidden by false ones of a decidedly reddish tinge.

When the family assembled for breakfast, she was introduced to each member. Mr. and Mrs. Mercer believed in treating their hired help as ladies and gentlemen, so long as their behavior entitled them to such treatment. They seemed to be a very loving family, though not as demonstrative as some.

The Mercer farm was a large one and consequently there was much work indoors and out. Bessie had several opportunities during the first few days, of seeing Arthur take the heaviest burdens upon himself instead of leaving them for his father or younger brother. He was uniformly kind and gentle to his mother and sisters. When resting at noon, little Mattie and Harry seemed to think him their especial property to tumble over as much as they pleased, while he was lying on the grass in the shade.

Bessie, he treated as kindly and respectfully as he would any lady who was his mother's guest. He kept the wood box full and never let her bring a pail of water, if he was around when it was needed. The whole family seemed to place all confidence in everything he said or did. One week sufficed to perfectly satisfy Bessie in regard to Arthur's capabilities of making a good husband. Yet her thoughts reverted many times a day to gay laughing Gus.

She was more than delighted one day when Mrs. Mercer mentioned that Mrs. Windon's seamstress was very sick and she did not know where to find another.

That afternoon Bessie did not feel well and begged to go home for a few days.

'O mamma,' she cried bursting into her mother's room, and startling that good lady out of her nap, 'How fortune smiles on me.'

'I have just found out to-day that Mrs. Windon's seamstress is sick and she is very anxious to supply her place; so mother mine, this time I'll assume the garb of a little Quakeress and before I sleep I'll know whether Dame Fortune will assist me in finding out good and bad qualities of my other suitor.'

As Bessie passed along the broad path leading from the gate to the pleasant Windon homestead, she heard Mrs. Windon say, 'It is too bad, Gus; your father was so anxious to finish that fence to-day and could if you had only helped him.' 'Mother it fatigues me to work when it is so warm,' laughingly answered Gus.

Bessie's knock ended the conversation. She made known her errand and Mrs. Windon very gladly engaged her. When Mr. Windon came in he looked tired and worried, but said nothing.

The next morning Mrs. Windon asked Gus to drive her to the city, as she must do a little shopping. 'All right my lady mother, but please instruct Ned to see that the carriage is at the door when you desire it, and I shall be quite happy to accompany you,' said Gus, from his comfortable position on the couch.

When the carriage was driven to the door, he did not offer to assist his mother, but sprang in and waited for her to follow. The next morning he took his gun and dog and went hunting, though it was altogether too warm to work.

One morning Mrs. Windon had a severe head-ache which confined her to her room. Bessie had nearly finished one dress when she found it would be necessary to have a little more trimming. She reported the fact to Mrs. Windon who immediately called Gus and asked him to take Miss D—— the seamstress, to the city that she might match the trimming. But he very politely declined the honor of riding out with her, by saying in a tone loud enough to be perfectly understood in the sewing room which joined Mrs. Windon's.

'My dearest mother, I prefer to choose my company when I ride out and I am not in the habit of choosing our hired help. What would the elegant Miss Bessie say if she should see me in such company?'

Bessie's eyes flashed for an instant and then a queer little smile danced around the corners of her mouth as she murmured to herself, 'The die is cast, my elegant admirer, do-nothing; how surprised you'll be when you come for your answer.'

Good-hearted Ned volunteered to go, not very gently telling his elder brother that probably Miss D—— would prefer riding with a gentleman if she went at all.

When they returned, Neddie handed his mother a letter from her niece, Alice Crofton, who stated that they might expect her and a friend, Carrie Wagner, on the 3.45 train the following afternoon. Gus was delighted, and when the time came to go for them he needed neither coaxing nor urging.

When he returned, he sprang out and assisted the ladies to alight. Bessie could hardly realize that he was the same person she had seen lounging around for the past few days bent upon taking his ease regardless of the rights or feelings of others. He was now the same gallant Gus of Bessie's acquaintance. Though extremely warm, it was no trouble to plan amusements for his cousin and her friend.

One day they had a croquet party to which several young people of the neighborhood were invited.

Arthur Mercer and his sister Emma were of the number. She came, but he sent his regrets; his father was not very well, and there was some work which must be attended to. How unlike Gus, thought Bessie.

Another day there was a picnic at Forest Lake, then a party at Mr. Dimple's. Soon after the arrival of the young ladies, Gus drove after Bessie to present her to his friends. He had not a doubt but what her answer would be all he desired. He returned very much disappointed. 'My bright and particular star will not shine upon you ladies during your stay, and I am very sorry. Her mother tells me she is away and may not return for two weeks.' 'Don't grieve too much, Gussie dear, for I'm sure Bessie cannot be prettier or more winning than sweet Nellie Lindon. If Bessie does not return why not stifle your grief and play the gallant to little Nell?'

'My dear cousin Alice you are not one bit worldly wise, or else you are ignorant of the circumstances,' chimes in mischievous Ned.

'Bessie is the only child of the richest man in these parts, Nellie is the eldest of eight children; and it is a constant struggle for the where-with-all to clothe and feed the flock. Our Gus is not fond of work.'

During the laugh which followed, Ned made his escape.

The seamstress was utterly ignored by the gay young people; though she did not sew in, the evening she was not invited to share any of their amusements.

She received her pay Saturday night and with a light heart started for home. Her mission was accomplished as well as Mrs. Windon's sewing, and both parties were perfectly satisfied.

One evening, the following week, Arthur and Emma drove around by Mr. Lanson's and invited Bessie to take a ride.

Emma proposed that they call at the Windon homestead, which Bessie was nothing loth to do. They found Gus, Alice, and Carrie finishing a very interesting game of croquet. Gus was delighted to have the opportunity of presenting Bessie to his friends.

He did not relish the idea of her riding out wit Mercer, but as Emma was along he soon dismissed it from his thoughts. They spent a very pleasant evening, Gus scarcely leaving Bessie's side. As they were taking leave he managed to whisper to her, 'Remember my month of probation is over next Wednesday night, you may expect me that evening for my answer.' 'It will be ready, you may rest assured,' said Bessie, and she treated him to one of her sweetest smiles.

Bessie was not a coquet, but she felt he needed to have his expectations raised a little that he might be the more completely humilitated.

She was confident that his cousin and her friend looked upon her as his affianced; their words and action plainly said so, and he must have given them that impression.

That night in his room Gus soliloquized after this fashion: 'Poor Mercer! I'm deuced sorry for him. He seems quite infatuated with Bessie. How surprised and chagrined he will be when he sees me carry off the prize. A little of old Lanson's 'filthy lucre' will not come amiss, that is sure, and Bessie is the queenly sort of a lady that Mrs. Windon should be.

How all my less fortunate friends will envy me my beautiful and accomplished wife.'

With vissions of Bessie presiding over his home, which her father's money would probably purchase, he fell asleep. Quite different were the thoughts of Arthur.

'I fear Bessie cannot care for me as my wife must. Gus was all devotion this evening and she seemed to enjoy it. How stupid and inattentive I must appear compared with Gus, who is all life and jolity.

I believe I could make Bessie happier than she will be with him. I fear her pleasure will have to be subservient to his, many times. But mother says we men never can understand a woman, so I will lay no more stress on Bessie's behavior this evening, and patiently wait till next week.'

With a quickly beating heart Bessie entered the parlor Tuesday evening, for she knew Arthur was there waiting for his answer. He rose as she entered, one look at her beautiful face and he dared to hope his love was returned. He opened his arms and Bessie all blushes and smiles walked straight into them.

'My darling, last Thursday evening when I saw you smile so sweetly on Gus, I trembled for fear he would be your choice.'

'Now, Arthur, I have a confession to make, and perhaps you will respect and love me less.'

Then she related what the reader already knows. It did not seem to change his sentiments, but to amuse him very much.

'And what will you tell Gus to-morrow evening, Bessie?'

'I shall tell him plainly how I arrived at my decision, and it may help him in future to be courteous to all.'

After a pleasant evening discussing their future. Arthur said good night and went home with a happy heart.

The next evening Gus presented himself in an unexceptionable toilet, and the air of a favored suitor. Bessie hesitated a moment in the doorway. Gus immediately crossed the room to her side, attempted to put his arms around her and lead her to the sofa. Bessie put out her hands in protest and quietly slipped into her willow rocker and motioned Gus to a seat opposite. He obeyed without a word, looking rather crest fallen.

'Gus, I have a little story to tell you. Four weeks ago last evening Arthur Mercer asked me to be his wife. I was somewhat surprised, having thought of him only as a pleasant acquaintance; I asked him to give me time to decide. He kindly consented. The next evening you proposed and was treated in the same manner. I had no thought of you in the character of a lover any more than Arthur.

I did not understand my own heart well enough to accept either of you at the time, yet I was rather more favorably inclined toward you. I determined to find out, if possible, which would make the most agreeable companion for life. Mrs. Mercer had told me the week before that her girl intended to leave; while I was trying to think of some plan by which to accomplish my purpose, as if it had been an inspiration, the thought came, why not obtain the position in Mrs. M's family and find out what I could of Arthur's home life? I went immediately to Mrs. Mercer's, offered my services, was accepted and began my duties next morning. I found them a very courteous family. The sincerest affection was manifested by each one toward the others. Selfishness could find no abiding place there. I studied Arthur's character every time an opportunity presented itself.

I saw he was a kind, affectionate son and brother, who thought of the comfort of every one else (even the hired girl) before self.

He treated me as respectfully as he did his mother's guests. I could not help admiring and respecting him, and yet your pleasant face was often before me.'

Gus had grown restless during the story, but during her last sentence his face had brightened, and he interrupted her with, 'Bessie, is it fair to give one a chance to display his amiable disposition and not the other?'

'No, indeed, but I am not through. Fortune was very kind to me. I heard your mother needed a seamstress. The little Quakeress you despised and would not ride to town with, was none other than the 'elegant' Bessie you so much wished to present to your friends.

It is needless for me to repeat the many other incidents of that week, which convinced me that you cared more for your own ease and pleasure, than for the comfort or happiness of those you should love best on earth, and I decided it would be safer to trust my life's happiness to Arthur. I hold every woman should be treated like a lady so long as her conduct warrants such treatment, whether she be rich or poor, homely or handsome.

I forgot all about your pleasant gallantry when I saw how utterly selfish you were in your home.

The dear home friends should receive kindness and polite attentions as well as honored guests. I feared the time would come when you would care as little for my pleasure as you seemed to for your father and mother.

And then how my heart would ache to see you so polite and attentive to visitors, while I would be totally neglected.

I believe Arthur will ever be the same kind courteous gentleman to every one, no matter what their position in life. Last night I promised to be his wife. He has his answer; you have yours. Forgive me Gus, if I have seemed harsh or unkind.'

When Bessie finished Gus lifted his face out of which all hope had vanished. 'You are right, Bessie, you have chosen wisely. No one is to blame but myself. My life has been a miserable failure; but you shall not despise me. I will be a man and win your respect. Will you be my friend still, Bessie?'

'You do not know how happy I shall be if any words of mine lead you to a life of usefulness.'

* * * * *

'It is five years to-night, dear Arthur, since I gave Gus his answer. To-day he is the leading lawyer of B. To-morrow he will be the husband of our dear Emma, and I do not fear to trust her to him. The old selfish Gus is transformed into a true gentleman like—like—well somewhat resembling your papa, darling,' said Bessie, as she caught up two-year-old Winnie and danced around the room.

'Dear Bessie, if it had not been for your little scheming head, I fear there would not now be four such very happy people in this little town. May many others go and do likewise.'

Dynamite For A Singer.

A Rude Shock at Patti's Concert In San Francisco.

An Aged Crank Makes Some Evil Remarks About the Diva and J. C. Flood and Prematurely Explodes a Bomb Which Injures Himself—Patti Calms the House.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—A crank attempted to kill Adelina Patti during a concert at the Grand opera house by means of a bomb. The would-be assassin was injured, though not seriously, by the premature explosion of the engine of destruction. It was Patti's last concert and the Grand opera house was crowded. At 10:20 after Patti had twice appeared in front of the curtain in response to recalls at the conclusion of an aria from La Traviata, and just as she had retired again to the wings, a tremendous explosion was heard above the applause, and a cloud of smoke was seen to rise over the railing of the top gallery. Instantly every lorgnette in the house was focussed on the spot where the smoke arose and a panic was imminent. People in the gallery were rushing about, seeking the quickest means of exit, and it was only through the self-possession of the newspaper men present in the boxes coupled with that of the diva herself, that a stampede of the entire audience for the doors was prevented.

The newspaper men were in the stage box, and they quickly perceived that no serious harm had been done. They communicated by nods and motions with Mme. Patti, who was still in the flies, to come before the curtain. She comprehended the situation and came forward quickly, and giving the cue to Arditi, began singing Home Sweet Home. This had a calming effect on the audience, and though many left their seats to ascertain the cause and effect of the unexpected punctuation to the performance, the concert was carried on to its conclusion. As soon as the location of the trouble could be learned a policeman rushed to the scene and found a man with a badly-burned face and hands moaning with agony, and the remains of an infernal machine about him. He was placed under arrest and conveyed to Irving hospital, where he said that when he stooped to pick up his hat and cane he found a package under his seat which he picked up, and that as he raised it to see what it was, it exploded. Though he was badly burned about the face and hands, it is believed he received no serious injuries, and no other person is believed to have been hurt. He gave his name as Dr. James Hodges, aged seventy-one years, a dyspepsia specialist, and his residence at No. 4 Central place.

Others give a different, but undoubtedly correct, version of the affair. A lady who sat next to him, and who narrowly escaped injury, says that during the evening he made a number of significant remarks which pointed clearly to the purpose he afterward attempted to carry out. Among the observations which the lady distinctly remembered was: 'Patti is singing excellently to-night, but she will never sing any more.' He was also heard to make uncomplimentary and revengeful allusions to J. C. Flood and his family, who were present in a box. At the Irving hospital, after his wounds had been dressed, the chief of police attempted to make him commit himself, but the effort was a complete failure. He stoutly maintained his innocence. The chief of police pronounced him a crank.

The bomb was made of a can filled with powder, in the centre of which was a bottle. The can was wrapped in pieces of cloth soaked in inflamable oil, and it is believed that the intention was not only to kill Patti and those near the stage, but also to set fire to the building. The bomb was arranged to explode by a number of friction matches, which were connected with a fuse in the powder. The theory is that the fuse burned too quickly for the crank and the explosion was premature. Though Patti performed her part in the remainder of the programme, it was noticeable that the occurrence had considerable effect upon her and had somewhat subdued her usual vivacity.

Blessings in Disguise.

A Startling Showing of the Night Have Been but for War, Famine, Pestilence and Carnage.

Never was charity so general as in the present time, and in no land so universal as here. Never was a country so blessed as ours by the absence of the great calamities that constantly threaten human life and health. But what would be the result of a continuance, for centuries, of such a happy condition, and how would it affect the future of man? Take for granted that the world is but six thousand years old, that its inhabitants all sprang from a single pair—Adam and Eve; suppose the virtue, temperance and the beneficient traits of peace and good will to all prevailed at the beginning, and had been continued to the present time. What would then be the condition of mankind? The answer comes from all sides: A wonderful prosperity and happiness. Let us calculate. It is very reasonable to suppose that a community whose members practiced peace and good will, who were virtuous and temperate in all things, would, in the ordinary course of things, double in population every twenty years. Yet, to be entirely within all bounds, we will suppose it to double only once in a century. Now, starting with the single pair in the year one, and doubling their increase every hundred years, it is found that in five thousand years—which would correspond to the year A.D. 887—there would be 2,251,799,813,685,248 virtuous and peace-loving souls on our planet. This would be over eleven millions to every square mile. While at six thousand years, or the present year of 1887, the population would have so increased that every square foot of the entire area of our globe would be compelled to accommodate 424 persons. Taking the actual land at three-fifths of the whole, leaving out the seas and oceans but including such balmy spots as the North Pole and the Desert of Sahara, the number of persons to the square inch would be five. It is quite possible that long before reaching such a point peace and good will would have given place to practices more akin to war and extermination.

Is it not then to these very "curses of our race," War, Pestilence, Famine and Intemperance, that we of to-day owe our standing-room and existence? What would happen if there was not some outlet, and will not the time come—if all the world were as nicely behaved as optimists desire—when there will not be space enough to breathe in? Part of this finds its reply in the pithy line of Wordsworth,

"Carnage, too, is God's daughter."

OWEN A. GILL.

A Washington "Sponge."

'Do you know I don't actually spend $4 a month for food seven months in the year,' said a Washingtonian. 'Here is my programme: I rise about 11:30 or 12 o'clock (I am not a workingman), and take a cup of coffee and two biscuits, which cost nine cents. I start out on my rounds calling, about 2:30 in the afternoon, and strike any of fifty places, where I take lunch with the family. I work the dinner racket the same way, and late in the evening put on my dress suit and manage to hit a good warm lunch where a reception is in progress.'

'Do many men live in this way?' asked the correspondent.

'I can name you twenty men right in this town who are playing the same game. Why, what's the use in a fellow putting up good hard boodle when he can live without it?'

A Three Thousand Dollar Cane.

Probably the most valuable cane in Chicago is owned by Dr. W. H. Hale, a Scotchman, who left Edinburg five years ago, and has since traveled a hundred thousand miles, the cane going with him. The head of this wondrous cane contains over three pounds of 18-karat gold, and is mounted with sixty-five diamonds. The gold snake which entwines the upper part of the cane has ruby eyes. In the top of the head is secured a gold chronometer balance watch the cover of which contains a gold monogram of its owner, studded with twenty-four diamonds. Dr. Hale says the cost of the cane was $3500. He is naturally very proud of it, and never tires showing it to callers.—Chicago Herald.

H. Y. STITZER, Secretary. JAMES A. McCLAIN, Chairman.

CAPTAIN A. W. Greely, of arctic expedition fame, has been appointed chief signal officer, with the rank of brigadier general.

THE trade dollar bill is still in the balance, with a slight tendency to its final passage. Those of the house who are in favor of the redemption of the trade dollar believe that the Senate will eventually accept the measure.

PHILADELPHIA stuck to its old colors in last Tuesday's election. It elected Fitler, the republican candidate for Mayor by about 30,000 majority. Clay will get away with the office of receiver of taxes with about 10,000 majority, leaving Benton, democrat, out in the cold. City Solicitor Warwick, republican, is re-elected by a heavy majority. There is very little democracy about Philadelphia according to these returns.

WEDNESDAY morning's Patriot came out in jubilant colors over the triumph of Harrisburg's democracy in Tuesdays election. John A. Fritchey and William K. Verbeke, the democratic candidates for Mayor and City Controller, were elected by handsome majorities, which is taken as a sure sign that the democratic party of Pennsylvania's capital is united and has the co-operation of the labor party. 'Rah for Harrisburg.'

WAR is still a predominant topic in Europe and by all accounts they are bound to shed blood over there before long. Appropriations to supply the armies with more arms and war material are being voted by the legislative bodies right along, in order to be ready for a surprise and only on the defensive, but they all seem to be sure of the surprise. In fact whole Europe seems to be holding its breath while awaiting the signal of alarm. In the meantime Uncle Sam stands ready with a full supply of provisions to furnish the fighting nations across the pond with the necessaries of life.

IT has been learned that Mr. Manning called at the White House on Monday afternoon and placed his resignation in the hands of the president to take effect on the appointment and qualification of his successor. This action is taken in order to allow Mr. Manning to accept the presidency of the Western National bank, of the city of New York. It is stated at the White House that no immediate appointment will be made to the office and that Mr. Manning will continue to act as secretary for several weeks. It is known that the president parts with Mr. Manning with sincere regret and that he reluctantly consents to his withdrawal from the cabinet.

PRESIDENT Cleveland is still undecided whom to appoint on the interstate commerce commission. The trouble is there are several hundred applicants for the positions, all able men, no doubt, but the choice is so good that Cleveland is at a loss whom to select. It is said that he is determined that the members of the commission shall be young men. To one of his visitors he remarked:

"I want men on the Board who are as sound physically as they are mentally. I want, in other words, men who can make, if necessary, a hurried trip to California, solve the intricacies of some problem there, return in the same fashion to Washington, stopping a few days at Chicago, doing some more work there, and yet not feel the fatigue of the trip. There will be a great deal of traveling and a great deal more hard work. It will be no sinecure. Whoever takes a place on the board will earn every dollar of his money."

The Militia Bill a Law.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The president has allowed the act appropriating $400,000 a year to provide arms and equipments for the militia to become a law without his signature. The constitutional limitation of ten days within which he should have acted on this bill expired on Saturday. His failure to sign the bill is regarded as an oversight, as he was not known to object to any of its provisions.

Next Year's Campaign.

Ex-Senator Barnum Thinks the Democrats Will Win It.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Ex-Senator Barnum, of Connecticut, has been in Washington for several days and during that time has made several visits to the Executive Mansion, where he has had conferences on several subjects of importance to the administration and upon the political preliminaries and prospects of the national campaign next year. In speaking of the political outlook the veteran ex Senator and politician said:

"I consider that the Democrats will have a reasonably sure thing of it in New York, and I know that we will in Connecticut. The last election disposed of all doubts on that score. We elected three Democratic members of Congress which is a fair test of strength. The law of the State requires a majority to elect a Governor but a plurality can give us the electoral ticket. We can get that. So you can put Connecticut down for the Democratic nominee for President. We should have had the Legislature, and I expected that we would capture it, but the Republicans had the machinery."

"What do you think of the campaign of 1888?"

"It will be a fair test of public sentiment on good government under Democratic auspices. It must be admitted that Mr. Cleveland has made a good president for the country and for the Democratic party. He has had the courage to do what he considered right, without reference to the clamor of a few people who represent political methods and popular intelligence of thirty years ago, and, therefore, are behind the age. The Democratic party is stronger to-day before the people than it was in November, 1884. Under President Cleveland it has been restored to public confidence and under his leadership it will not only have every prospect of winning again, but in a second success it may be counted safely established in authority until its own folly brings it into disrepute. Sagacious statesmanship will moor the party on safe ground, and there she should stay for many years."

The ex-Senator laughed at the talk of the nomination of Blaine being consequent upon the renomination of Cleveland. "Only let the republicans try it. That will suit us. The recent Senatorial fight in New York has increased the dissensions in our opponent's ranks four-fold. And I am certain that Blaine cannot carry Connecticut, New Jersey or Indiana. We have run Massachusetts down to a doubtful State. I believe we can beat Blaine there, and there are other New England States very shaky. Judging from the present appearance of things, I don't think that the Republican leaders will permit Mr. Blaine to be remembered. They have not yet lost all their political cunning. But should he be taken up you will see the worst beaten party that has been known for many years. A Western man for President, with a strong man in New York for Vice President, might give the contest a hopeful outlook for the Republicans."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13, 1887.

The sensation of the past week on Capitol Hill was the President's veto of one of the most reckless specimens of legislation that was ever presented to any Congress: the Universal Pension bill. Not that his action was a surprise to those who have watched his course in regard to pension matters, for he has shown, on several occasions already that he has the courage to do his duty. But, as Representative Springer said, no man ever filled the office of President before Mr. Cleveland, who would have had the boldness to veto such a bill which had passed both Houses of Congress by more than two-thirds majority, and which had so powerful a sentiment at the back of it.

Echoes of congratulation have been coming back to the President from all parts of the country, and he has heard plenty of censure from the mere partisans who have learned to regard the war as their personal legacy. But he will have the praise, approval and gratitude of the great mass of the people of all sections, the tax-paying civilian and the honest veteran, of all all true patriots both of the North and South.

The reading of the Presidents message explaining his reasons for the veto commanded close attention from the House of Representatives. Many Congressmen are now unable to say what their future action will be until they have heard from their constituents. It is thought, however, that the bill could not be passed over the veto, for many members who voted for it have been surprised since at the condemnation it received from people among all parties.

Should this remarkable pension bill become a law, it would give a pension to every ex-Union soldier who can not earn the sort of living he would like—in other words, to every man who was in the Federal army and is yet alive. It would give a pension to every drunkard and shiftless loafer who was in the army for ninety days, even if his disability is due solely to his own vices. It would give a premium to mendicancy and indolence for nothing convinces a man that he is unable to work like showing him that he can live without it.

And then think of the millions after millions of the people's money that such a bill would waste. It would double the pension burden of the United States, making it $130,000,000 a year. It would make the roll call of pensioners larger than the Federal army ever was and four times as large as the whole standing army of England.

The Republican members of Congress have made but little comment upon the subject. The veto message seems to have taken their breath. Rep. Stalnecker, of N. Y., thinks the message is the abiest state paper of Mr Cleveland's term. Said he, "It takes up the bill, section by section, and just tears it to tatters. In stating his reasons for the veto, he has built a fort around him which it will be pretty difficult to storm."

A western congressman, who was speaking of the Presicent's courage said, "my admiration for him was never great until now. He has turned his face against a sentiment before which all parties have bowed, and if he is sustained by Congress, this incident may be the turning point of a popular reaction against the abuse of the whole pension business."

Miscellaneous News.

Ninety-year-old Twins.

WOODBERRY, Pa., Feb. 11.—The widow Christina Buckheimer of this township, and widow Elizabeth Gray of Houstin township are twin sisters, aged 90 years. They were married on the same day, and their husbands died within a few hours of each other. Each widow has ten children, nineteen grandchildren, and one great grandchild. If one of the aged sisters fall sick the other is similarly affected. They are both now in rugged health, and attend to their own household duties.

Freezing Weather Adding to the Terrors of the Great Freshet.

LYONS, Mich., Feb. 14.—The ice gorge is frozen solid to a depth of from five to ten feet. The river is still flowing through Main street, and merchants are building trestle works to their stores, only to find their goods frozen in ice. The cold weather has settled the water nearly a foot, but made work almost impossible. The men working in the water are coated with ice. The first mail since last Wednesday arrived to-day, being carried across the gorge below. Families who were driven from their homes without a change of clothing are returning on boats through the windows to find everything covered with ice.

A Great Fire at Augusta.

AUGUSTA, Feb. 12.—A disastrous conflagration raged here between 6 and 9.30 o'clock to-night. The whole city was lit up by the flames and people were wild with excitement. The Masonic building, a large and imposing structure on Broad street, and the Opera House, in which Mrs. Bowers played "Lady Audley's Secret" at a matinee this afternoon, and the large stores of Daily & Armstrong and Baillie & Coskery, are totally destroyed. The Globe Hotel, Central Hotel and stores of J. B. White & Co. are badly damaged. Mrs. Bowers and her company lost their wardrobes. Several small stores were destroyed.

Fire in Philadelphia.

The Third Story of the City Hall at Broad and Market Streets Ablaze.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—Fire broke out in the northwest wing of the fourth floor of the new city hall, at Broad and Market streets, this afternoon. The fire is confined to the rooms, two in number, where it was first discovered, and cannot extend below the third floor. This portion of the building is unoccupied. The flames originated, it is supposed, from spontaneous combustion in the third floor room, and quickly burned through a temporary wooden flooring into the room above and thence through the roof. The room where the fire broke out is used for the storage of rubbish, and contained a quantity of old rags used by the painters. The loss will probably amount to $10,000, said to be covered by insurance.

Ice Gorge and Floods.

Towns in Michigan and Other Points West in Great Distress.

LYONS, Mich., Feb. 10.—Lyons is a sea of ice. Grand river rose during the night about four feet, and an ice gorge formed just below the city. The whole business part of the town is under water and great damage has been sustained. The loss will reach into the thousands. Several families have been driven out of their dwellings and others took to the upper stories. The ice gorge covers an area of about four hundred acres, and is estimated to be twenty feet thick in some places. The water is several feet deep on the second floor in the woolen mills and Cornell Works. It is feared the flouring mills with 10,000 bushels of wheat and two hundred barrels of flour will be flooded. Should the Lansing ice reach here before the gorge breaks it will probably leave the river bed and carry many houses down the river. All mails are shut off from the North and West. Boats manned with three or four oarsmen each are making strenuous efforts to save property. Some buildings have been swept down the stream and others must surely go. The current is cutting the embankment of the Water Power Company and rushing in torrents through the factories. Those who can are anchoring their buildings to keep them from being swept down stream. It is estimated that one thousand acres are covered with the ice gorge.

At Owosso, Mich., the ice in the Shiawassee river is jammed below Main street bridge and the water, already high, is rising gradually. All factories along the river have been obliged to close.

RUSH, N. Y. Feb. 10.—The Genesseo river has overflowed its banks at this point and is now a mile wide. The water, which is still rising, is much higher than last night. At Geneseo the river yesterday was higher than it has been for years. The rise was very sudden and large loss of animals is reported. The water is now subsiding. At Lyon the flats are flooded and impassable. The flowing water is over a mile wide. The canal and railroad is a foot under water.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Considerable trouble has been experienced here from high water, cellars of houses and business places being flooded. From Suspension Bridge come the same reports, especially along West and Lewistown avenues. The Keliar-Hagger building has ten feet of water in it. Difficulty was experienced in going to and fro from the New York Central and Michigan Central freight offices.

At Clifton, Ont., Bridge street was turned into a creek last night, the water rushing down to the river in torrents. Efforts made to keep the water from flooding cellars and houses were of no avail.

The Trick of a Tramp.

CARLISLE, Feb. 10.—Cumberland county is the tramp's Florida. Among the many schemes they have for turning an honest penny between their jail spells the following, which was worked yesterday, is unique. A ragged, lame and dirty fellow visited the stores in succession and begged a cake of soap. The purpose was so apparent that he was rarely refused. After putting in a day solid at this he held an auction at night and disposed of the day's plunder which was large. The result was a neat sum, enough to keep him in luxuries for some time.

—WHEN your children are threatened with croup or whooping-cough, beware how you lull them to sleep with cough syrups whose principal ingredients are morphia and opium. The natural effort of the lungs to expel the suffocating mucus is coughing. Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine contains no morphia or opium in any form, and by its stimulating actions on the kidneys, bowels, and pores of the skin, more than any other remedy, assists Nature in breaking up and expelling the worst colds from the system. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers. Sold everywhere.

SOLD AT A SACRIFICE!

The Holidays are past, but a lot of holiday goods remain on our hands, and we will sell these goods at a

SACRIFICE.

What we wish to say to our customers is this: That we are going to sell cheaper than ever before.

WHY?

First—Because this is a dull season in general. But we are going to make it lively by selling goods way down and selling much.

Second—Because we have a big supply of winter goods on hand, that must be sold in order to make room for a spring stock.

Third—Because we can afford better to sell winter goods cheap than carry them over the saason.

Fourth—Because we have the "Swing" and are bound to keep it.

REMEMBER!

We have anything from a needle to a hogshead of molasses—a good Sewing Machine or a house and lot.

—The Journal, published in Logansville, by Scott Currin, has been enlarged to an eight-page paper. Times must be merciful to the printers over there. Success, Scott.

—Eggs experienced a drop this week. They didn't break on account of it, but it knocked the bottom out of their high prices. They can now be bought at 12 to 14 cents a dozen.

—H. G. Shafer, of Spring Mills, the future landlord of the National Hotel at this place was in town on Tuesday, to secure the required number of signers for his license petition.

—It is a thing worthy of commendation that there were no homely valentines sent or received in this town this year. All were lovely and good-natured, at least we are told so.

—Mrs. Wm Losh, of Walker, Pa., spent a few days in town as the guest of her father, Mr. George Bierley, north of town. The lady favored this office with a call during her stay.

—Remember the sale of real estate of the late Mrs. Sarah Bright on Main street, to take place next Saturday afternoon at one o'clock. The property has a central location and is a desirable home.

—A. H. Miller, of Madisonburg, gave us a call last Saturday. He is another of the goodly number of new subscribers we had the pleasure of adding to the JOURNAL list lately. Next ?

—The sensational story gotten up by the Mormons, that Brigham Young, their prophet, has returned to this earth is a ghostly yarn. Brigham most likely is where he will never be heard of again.

—The president has appointed Cyrus A. Eaton to be postmaster at Mifflinburg and William Hummelreich for the same position at Lewisburg. The appointments meet with universal satisfaction.

—It has been proposed that the government announce the coming of storms by firing cannons. Not a bad idea. We propose the cannons be loaded with weather-prophets, excepting the venerable groundhog.

—H. C. Allison's large barn at Cedar Run, Clinton county, was destroyed by fire along with some of its contents on Monday morning. It is said to have been one of the finest barns in that section and the loss is very large.

Deafness is caused usually by an inflamed condition of the mucus surface of the Eustachian Tube. This Tube is the channel of communication between the tympaneum and the upper part of the pharynx Thouber. Should this Tube become inflamed and closed up, Deafness is the result. If it is only partially closed, you have a rumbling sound or an imperfect hearing. There are two great causes for this: one is from taking a severe cold and the other from an impure condition of the blood, the consequence is that this tube has the Catarrh. Catarrh being nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucus surfaces of the system. We offer one hundred dollars reward for any case of deafness [caused by Catarrh] or a case of Catarrh that can not be cured with Hall's Catarrh Cure.

—Since the late railroad accident in Vermont by which so many lost their lives, the railroad officials of several companies talk seriously of making a change in the method of heating the cars. They say that before long the stoves will be abandoned and the cars heated in such a manner that passengers will not be endangered by fire.

—There was quite a display of feminine pugilistic powers on the corner of Main street the other evening. We understand that the women came up to the scratch as persistently and with as much grit as any Sullivan or Ryan would. After some blood had been drawn the matter was considered settled and the spectators dispersed pondering over the progress of time.

—The pain and misery suffered by those who are afflicted with dyspepsia are indescribable. The distress of the body is equalled or surpassed by the confusion and torture of the mind, thus making its victims suffer double affliction. The relief that is given by Hood's Sarsaparilla has caused thousands to be thankful for this great medicine. It dispels the causes of dyspepsia, and tones up the digestive organs. Try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—According to announcement the members of the Lutheran church at this place held a congregational meeting after their services on Sunday evening. The object of the meeting was the organization of a congregational mite society and the project was successfully accomplished by the enrollment of 49 members and the election of officers to serve during the ensueing year. The meetings of the society will be on the first Thursday of each month.

—For a time my life was despaired of. My trouble was with the Kidneys, Liver and Bladder—also Constipation. Finally I used Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, and in my opinion it saved my life. I make this statement to save those who suffer as I did.—A. J. Gifford, Lowell, Mass. Druggist; $1. Send 2 cent stamp to Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y., for his book on Kidney and Blood disorders. Mention this paper. 7-4t

—Last week's steady rains and mild weather caused a break of the ice in the Susquahanna river and a rise of its waters to about twelve feet. In many places along its banks the lowlands were flooded and considerable damage done to property. Thousands of logs were carried off by th flood. At Lock Haven, Main, Church and Bald Eagle streets were under water and all the cellars and the lower floors of some buildings were filled up and the people were obliged to hastily move their property to upper stories. The actual danger was past however in less than twenty-four hours and everybody breathed free again and was thankful that it wasn't worse.

DEATH'S DOINGS.—Charles Hoy, an estimable young gentleman, who has been lying seriously ill with consumption for the last few weeks at the residence of his parents, Daniel Hoy's, died on Saturday about noon. Deceased returned from the West about a year ago and ever since that time his health has been reducing slowly but steadily. Mr. Hoy had made many friends in this town by his genial nature and gentlemanly conduct, and all will unite in sympathizing with the the mourners. The subject of this notice was in the prime of his life, only 26 years old. After a brief spell of matrimonial life he leaves a young widow to grieve at the loss of her beloved husband. The funeral took place on Tuesday forenoon and was largely attended.

Services were held by Rev. Swengle in the Ev. church, and the remains were interred in the old cemetery.

—A correspondent asks: "Where can we send to get Peck's Patent Ear Drums, an invention for enabling people to hear who are deaf, slightly or otherwise ?" Write to F. Hiscox, 849 Broadway, N. Y., stating cause and particulars of your deafness and he will give you all the points desired. Read the following from the Medical Record: "A lecturer in one of our hospitals, while illustrating progress in medical science introduced a deaf patient whose case baffled all medical skill and was considered hopeless. But an invention belonging to F. Hiscox, New York, having been recomended it was used with very satisfactory results, as it fully restored the hearing. It was tested in other cases and found to be more successful than any known device for the relief of deafness, as hearing lost for many years was fully restored by it. This invention is all the more satisfactory as it is out of sight and does not require to be held in position. And while it can be readily removed or inserted by the patients themselves it is withal curative in action and comfortable to wear.

Rheumatism and Neuralgia cured in 2 Days.

The Indiana Chemical Co. have discovered a compound which acts with truly marvelous rapidity in the cure of Rheumatism and Neuralgia. We guarantee it to cure any and every cases of acute Inflammatory Rheumatism and Neuralgia in 2 DAYS, and to give immediate relief in chronic cases and effect a speedy cure.

On receipt of 30 cents, in two cent stamps, we will send to any address the prescription for this wonderful compound, which can be filled by your home druggists at small cost. We take this means of giving our discovery to the public instead of putting it out as a patent medicine, it being much less expensive. We will gladly refund money if satisfaction is not given. —The next large and important gathering at Bellefonte will be the M. E. Conference to be in session there from the 10th to the 17th of March next. Some of the most prominent divines of that denomination will take an active part in the programme and the Bellefonte people are preparing for many visiting clergymen and delegates.

THE Most Remarkable Case of all.—A gentleman writes us from Philipsburg, Centre Co., Pa., that his little girl was horribly afflicted with scrofula. Her body was full of sores, ears discharging continually thick yellow purid matter, and her eyes so swollen and inflamed as to be almost blind. One bottle of McDonald's Blood Purifier has to all appearances entirely cured her. Our neighbors, as well as ourselves, consider the cure remarkable.

A bonafide case. The address of the family can be obtained from the editor of this paper.

SMITH TOWN.

Still lots of mud.

Henry Keen left for Union county to attend a large horse sale there.

Mrs. Royer is again able to sit up. Hope she may soon recover.

John Kimport intends to quit farming, therefor he will make sale of his stock.

W. F. Smith sold a horse. Last week his fine iron gray tore the halter smack off and ran away. John Kimport caught him.

Your correspondent made a mistake two weeks ago in stating Philip Musser' receiving pension. There is nothing of it and if everybody would speak the truth mistakes of this kind would not occur. JUMBO.

GREEN BRIAR.

A great deal of electioneering was done last Tuesday.

Glad to see so many people become converted to Christ by the efforts of Rev. Shambach at Paradise church.

Robert Shunk has gone to Brush valley where he intends to stay this summer.

Quite a lot of fish are being caught here daily and there has been some talk of remembering the editor. Do you like fish ? [Do you remember of haying ever heard of a hungry country editor refusing anything good to eat ? Bring the fish on by all means, no question about liking them. Ed.]

St. Valentine day was observed here by the usual amount of low and vulgar valentines, and now the query is "who sent that dirty, greasy valentine ?"

The storm of last week did considerable damage between this place and Penn Hall. Some of the largest pine trees were broken in two and others were torn up by the roots.

Dan. Kerstetter has gone to Penns Caves to work on Whitmer's saw mill.

Henry Fiedler is having lumber cut for his new barn below Aaronsburg.

Wm. Ertel is getting in quite a lot of saw logs on his mill. Bill is a first-class sawyer and always turns out good work.

James Wert, the thresher, is at present sawing wood for Daniel Gentzel. ZITZKA.

COBURN.

The new mill has the frame work up and the work is going on rapidly.

The election has come and gone and the defeated candidates are all in good humor over their defeat.

Pay car passed over the road to-day and the railroad boys are all happy.

G. W. Swengle is paying his old home, Watsontown, a visit.

Everything quiet along the line. VALE.

AARONSBURG.

J. H. Musser shipped a car load of oats from Coburn to the eastern market on last Friday.

Mr. Isaac Troxell, from Philipsburg, Pa., was the guest of Rev. Deitzler, on Friday and Saturday.

Charley Mensh, of the Middleburg Post, Middleburg, Pa., is here visiting his parents, Mr. Lewis Mensh's. Charley says, that's what they call me—"a little Devil."

Mrs. W. H. Stover is away visiting her sister, Mrs. L. D. Kurtz, Mifflinburg and Mrs. J. G. Kurtz, Milton, Pa.

Aaronsburg has two barber shops, one on North 2nd street, at A. Confer's confectionery, the other on Main St., at Chas. H. Stoyer's confectionery. Hair cut, shaved and shampooed, all for 25 cts. So says Clarence, the Main street barber.

The funeral of Mrs. Charlotte Stover on Wednesday of last week was largely attended by near relatives of this place. The burial took place at the east end of Brush Valley at the church near the decedent's residence, Rev. Dotterer, (Ref.) officiating.

Prof. W. T. Meyer and family, of Shamokin, Pa., are here visiting their parents and friends. W. T. looks well and judging by the way he handles himself he feels just as well. Always glad to see you, William.

In looking over the report, in last week's JOURNAL, of our Musical Convention, we did not notice the name of Prof. Ed. Kister, the violinist, among the list of names of performers. Certainly so prominent a figure as Mr. Kister deserved some notice. Explain yourself, Mr. Convention reporter.

Some fellow that had no conscience and we suppose no meat, paid a nocturnal visit to William Hafley's smoke house last week. William is now minus some beef and several hams.

Rev. Deitzler's protracted meeting which had been in progress exactly six weeks, closed on last Sunday evening. There was quite a large number of conversions, the majority of which are heads of families. ANOTHER.

PENN HALL.

Dr. Fisher and daughter, from Boalsburg, were visiting friends in town.

Mrs. Jno. Smith has been to Brush Valley last Sunday to see her father who is seriously ill.

One of our young men who is in the habit of visiting at Henry Keen's quite frequently, we understand, has applied for toll rates by the year. Going into the horse business, Cal ?

Mr. Wm Heckman, from Centre Hall, was in town last week.

We are glad to say that though the improvements of this town are not increasing, its population is. [So much for being a neighboring town of Millheim. It's contagious, it seems. Ed.]

Jos. Smith was on a trip to Bellefonte and Nittany Valley last week,

Geo. Haney, the little blacksmith, is again in our midst doing some work for Fred. Moyer.

Mrs. S. J. Hering and Mrs. Jonas Condo had been visiting at Aaronsburg.

There is some talk of having a summer school in this place this year. That is exactly what our town needs, and though the scholars may be scarce by a little extra work a school may be raised.

We are sorry to record the close of our debating society, but think the members who were absent at the last meeting regret it the most as they are minus the "Sea Foam Taffy."

MADISONBURG.

The evangelical meeting closed on Sunday evening. Quite a number of parsons professed religion during the meeting.

Uriah Shafer expects to move into the house vacated by his brother, E. S. Shafer.

Rolley Royer will move into the house vacated by Uriah Shafer.

Geo. Miller, of Spring Bank, was in town on Monday. He will likely move here in the spring.

William Bierly, in company with Miss —— spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents.

Daniel Holderman expects to move to near Bellefonte on Thursday.

Geo. Reber sold a horse to Daniel Weaver.

The Misses Annie Bierly and Rebecca Hazel, and Mr. E. H. Reber are attending the musical convention at Tusseyville this week.

Wilson Hazel contemplates building a new house this summer.

John S. Hoy is getting lumber ready to build a summer house and a wood house. *

MARRIED.

On the 20th, ult., at Lemont, Pa., by J. H. Welch, John E. Cronemiller and Miss Clara A. Fry.

DIED

On the 6th inst., at her home, near Fillmore, Centre Co., Pa., of dropsy, Mrs. Peggy Meckley, aged 72 years, 5 months and 7 days. Sorrowing friends mourn their loss. Services by J. H. Welch.

On the 12th inst., at Millheim, of consumption, Mr. Charles Hoy, aged 26 years, 9 months and 11 days.

On the 6th inst., at the east end of Brushvalley, Mrs. Charlotte Stoyer, widow of Adam Stover, deceased, aged 76 years 2 months and 12 days.

Mrs. Stover was the mother of three children, two sons and one daughter, the latter having preceeded her to the spirit world. In her infancy she was dedicated to the Lord in the sacrament of baptism and at a mature age was instructed in the doctrines and duties of our holy religion and by the rite of confirmation admitted to full membership of the church. On Wednesday, the 10th inst., she was buried in the cemetery at the Grace Reformed church of which deceased was a member. A large concourse of people followed her remains to the grave and joined in the funeral services which were conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. Dotterer.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism of 10 years' standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Belleville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at J. Eisenhuth's drug store.

The Oft Told Story

Of the peculiar medicinal merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla is fully confirmed by the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried it. Peculiar in the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, peculiar in the extreme care with which it is put up, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in the unequalled good name it has made at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained,

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the most popular and successful medicine before the public today for purifying the blood, giving strength, creating an appetite.

"I suffered from wakefulness and low spirits, and also had eczema on the back of my head and neck, which was very annoying. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I have received so much benefit that I am very grateful, and I am always glad to speak a good word for this medicine." MRS. J. S. SNYDER, Pottsville, Penn.

They Were Always Busy.

Prior to the American Revolution every colonial farmhouse and every blacksmith's shop was a manufactory, for everything was literally manufactured, that is, made by hand. The blacksmith hammered out axes, hoes, forks, spades, ploughshears, scythes and nails. A tailoress went from house to house to make up the winter clothing, and was followed by the shoemaker.

The farmer prepared the leather from skins which had lain in the vat for a year, and his wife made ready the cloth.

Spinning-wheels buzzed from morning till night. Skeins of woolen and linen yarn hung on the walls of every house. Seated on the loom-seat, the best woman of the family plied shuttles and treadles, weaving blankets, sheets, table-cloths, towels, bed curtains, window curtains, flannels, and cloth for garments.

Every woman in the household manufactured something. The aged grandmother spun flax with the little wheel; the youngest daughter carded wool, and the oldest, if the men were busy, hatcheled flax. It was hard work that did it, and every hand did what it could best do.

The woman, whose "work" was never done," not only carded, spun and wove, but they milked the cows, made butter, bread and cheese, soap and candles, cooked the food, did the washing, and in harvest raked hay, pulled flax, and dug potatoes.

The neighbor, who happened in for an afternoon's gossip, brought her work. The mother patched or knitted, as she rested by the fireside, or quartered apples for the children to "string" and hang in the morning in festoons on the sunny outside walls. All were busy—always busy.

Post Office Thief Drowned.

Shot While a Gang is Breaking into the Bound Brook Post Office.

BOUND BROOK, N. J., Feb. 10.—Daring thieves entered the post office here. They were discovered by the railroad agent and he at once opened fire on them. One thief was shot, but he managed to get into the Raritan River, where he jumped in, hoping to escape by swimming to the other side. The loss of blood weakened him greatly and the icy waters numbed him. When but a few feet from the shore he sank with a despairing cry and was drowned. Efforts are now being made to get his body.

The pal of the drowned thief made a desperate struggle for freedom. He fought like a tiger, but was overpowered and taken into custody. It is supposed that others were with him, but they got away safely. Beyond doubt the robbers were members of the same gang who entered the Jersey City post office a few days ago, bound the watchman and janitor and tried to rob the safe. The town is in a terrible state of excitement. The captured burglar was taken to the jail at Summerville. He is sullen and morose, refusing to tell who he is or give the name of the dead thief.

A Woman Fish.

'Walk up! Walk up, ladies and gentlemen,' shouted a man at the top of his voice in front of a booth at a fair. 'Walk right up and inspect this curious phenomenon—a real, live woman-fish, the only one in existence.' There was a rush; the place was crammed to the doors. The curtain rose and a young woman dressed all in black appeared on the stage and said, in doleful accents: 'Ladies and gentlemen, I am the woman Fish. There is my certificate of marriage. My husband's name was Fish. He was a slater by trade. He was killed last summer through a fall off a scaffolding, and, as he has left me with four children unprovided for, I will take the liberty to go round and make a collection on their behalf.'

Delicately Done.

'Ah, madam,' he said, as he extended a hand to help her up, 'I never saw a more graceful fall. You threw up your arms like a born actress, your little feet indulged in a scuffle, and down you settled with a swan-like movement which was superb.'

'Really, sir?'

'Honest Injun, madam.'

And he picked up a No. 7 rubber which had been flung from her left foot, turned his back to a dent in the snow which looked as if a cottage had been upset there, and, raising his hat and making a profound bow he took his leave, while she continued to blush and smile for sixteen blocks.—Detroit Free Press.

PATENTS

After Forty years' experience in the preparation of more than One Hundred Thousand applications for patents in the United States and Foreign countries, the publishers of the Scientific American continue to act as solicitors for patents, caveats, trade-marks, copyrights, etc., for the United States, and to obtain patents in Canada, England, France, Germany, and all other countries. Their experience is unequaled and their facilities are unsurpassed.

Drawings and specifications prepared and filed in the Patent Office on short notice. Terms very reasonable. No charge for examination of models or drawings. Advice by letter free.

Patents obtained through Munn & Co. are noticed in the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, which has the largest circulation and is the most influential newspaper of its kind published in the world. The advantages of such a notice every patentee understands.

This large and splendidly illustrated newspaper is published WEEKLY at $3.20 a year, and is admitted to be the most popular paper devoted to science, mechanics, inventions, engineering works, and other departments of industrial progress, published in any country. It contains the names of all patentees and the claim of one invention patented each week. Try it four months for one dollar. Sold by all newsdealers.

If you have an invention to patent write to Munn & Co., publishers of Scientific American, 361 Broadway, New York.
